Introduction

Every author of the New Testament was either a Jew or a proselyte of the Jews.¹ So, is it even possible that the entire New Testament was originally composed in Greek? Scholars used to teach² that Hebrew was a 'dead language' in New Testament times, but the Dead Sea Scrolls³ together with the ¹ E.g. Luke, author of the Gospel of Luke and the Book of Acts.

"...Hebrew was not a living language any longer." – A.T. Robertson, A Grammar of the Greek New Testament in the Light of Historical Research, 1919, p. 94.

"The Qumran Caves Scrolls ...dates range from the third century BCE... to the first century [CE]... While Hebrew is the most frequently used language in the Scrolls, about 15% were written in Aramaic and several in Greek." – www.deadseascrolls.org.il/learn-about-the-scrolls/introduction (Accessed Dec. 2021.)

"Indeed, it is generally believed that the Dead Sea Scrolls, specifically the Copper Scroll [50 – 100 C.E.] and also the Bar-Kokhba letters [< 135 C.E.], have furnished clear evidence of the popular character of MH [Mishnaic Hebrew]." – Miguel Pérez Fernández, An Introductory Grammar of Rabbinic Hebrew, 1997, p. 3.

Mishna¹ provide ample evidence that Hebrew was still a living language around the first century C.E.!

Furthermore, there is internal evidence in a number of New Testament books that the original autograph was written in Hebrew. Some of these indications are even clearly visible in Greek-based English translations! Let's discuss one example:

Most Western Christians know exactly two Hebrew words: 'Amen' and 'Hallelujah.' That's all, except for a few Hebrew names of course. So, what do such people typically assume? They just assume that it is normal for anyone and everyone to know only these two Hebrew words. They don't even realize that the original authors of the New Testament would have known more than two Hebrew words!

Interestingly, the Book of Revelation uses both these Hebrew words, 'Amen' and 'Hallelujah'! Revelation 19:4 (ESV):

"And the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures fell down and worshiped God who was seated on the throne, saying, 'Amen. Hallelujah!'"²

² All emphasis throughout introductory sections were added for clarity. However, in the transcript / translation section, emphasis in English translation reflects emphasis in Hebrew text.

Let's just stop to ask the question: "If John used Hebrew words like 'Amen' and 'Hallelujah', why are we taught that the entire Book of Revelation was originally written in Greek?" Below are three hypothetical excuses:

1. "Perhaps Revelation was given in Hebrew, but John translated everything into Greek 'on the fly' and only retained two Hebrew words, 'Amen' and 'Hallelujah.'"
2. "John could not speak Hebrew and only knew these two Hebrew words (just like us Western Christians) – and thus Revelation was graciously given to him in Greek!"
3. "Perhaps John could speak Hebrew, but the heavenly beings who praised the Most High in Revelation 7:11-12 and 19:4 do not speak Hebrew. In fact, everything in heaven is spoken in Greek and only two Hebrew words are used, 'Amen' and 'Hallelujah.'"

Doesn't this sound ridiculous? Well, this is the dilemma which many New Testament scholars face. To advocate that Revelation was originally written in Greek, they have to believe one of these absurd proposals just mentioned.

It would make much more sense to say that John wrote the original copy in Hebrew; that YHWH, Yeshua and the heavenly beings in heaven speak Hebrew;¹ and that the Greek translation of Revelation was only made afterwards, using the original Hebrew text. If the inspired message of Revelation was given in Hebrew, why would John only record a second-hand

Greek translation, allowing the original Hebrew prophecy to be lost for ever?

One should keep in mind that there were Messianic Jews throughout the Mediterranean region and the Middle East who would have been able to read the original Hebrew version, and translate that into Greek, Latin or Aramaic as needed by non-Jewish believers in the assembly.¹

Thus, using merely an English translation of Revelation and some common sense, it is obvious that Revelation could not originally have been written in Greek, but was rather originally written in Hebrew.

In the sections to follow, we will discuss technical linguistic proofs from this Hebrew manuscript which confirm the Hebrew origin of Revelation.

About the Hebrew Manuscript

The Hebrew manuscript used for this translation of Revelation is from the Cambridge University Library, ms. Oo.1.16.²

¹ The Old-Testament scriptures were also originally composed in Hebrew and were only later translated into Greek, Aramaic and various other languages when deemed necessary.

Interestingly, it was found in one of the Jewish Synagogues in Cochin, India!¹

The first part of this manuscript is written in a semi-cursive script and contains Acts - Ephesians. The second part is written in a very small cursive script and fits the whole Revelation on only five folios!² Throughout the manuscript there are various Hebrew notes by past readers. The notes are generally either neutral³ or negative,⁴ but there are also some positive⁵ comments! It should also be noted that the scribes of the Cochin Hebrew New Testament manuscripts did not delete the instances where the original authors referred to Yeshua as the Messiah.⁶

¹ A similar manuscript, ms. Oo.1.32, was also found in 1806 by Buchanan in Cochin, India. Unfortunately, these two manuscripts have not received much attention over the past 200 years since they were brought to the U.K.

² Written on both sides – ms. Oo.1.16, folios 102r - 106v.

⁴ E.g. at Rev. 7:10, a reader commented, “קשה” (difficult!).

⁵ E.g. at Rev. 21, a reader commented, “זוה פרק טוב מאד” (‘This chapter is very good! Good! Good!’). Revelation 15:3 has the following note:

“זוה הרבה טוב שהקדים למשה” (‘This is very good as it is zealous for Moses,’ or possibly ‘It is very good that he was zealous for Moses’).

Internal evidence indicates that not all the books in this manuscript¹ derive from the same source. For example, the first part² of the manuscript does not contain the indications of authenticity expected in a faithful copy of an original Hebrew document. Rather, it is quite similar to the Aramaic (Syriac) Peshitta,³ and also contains Aramaic or Aramaic-like words, not properly translated into Hebrew.⁴

In contrast, the second part⁵ of this C.U.L. Oo.1.16 manuscript contains many differences when compared to the Greek, Latin, and Aramaic versions. It also shows the many linguistic evidences of authenticity expected in a genuine copy of an original Hebrew document: gapping of explicit subjects and objects; Hebrew word plays; inversed word order; Hebrew keywords linking sections together; and differences which himself calls Yeshua the Messiah. In the Greek version of Matthew, the author refers to Yeshua as the Messiah in: Mat.1:1; 1:17; 1:18; 11:2. The Shem Tov Matthew never once refers to Yeshua as the Messiah from the author's perspective.

¹ This also proves to be true of the Oo.1.32 manuscript.

² Acts – Ephesians, written in semi-cursive script.

³ For examples where Oo.1.16 agrees with the Peshitta against other versions see Act. 8:9 (Peshitta “I, I am great”); Act. 8:25 (Peshitta “word of God”); Act. 8:26 (Peshitta omits “that is desert”); Act. 2:30 (Peshitta “I will cause to sit”); 2 Cor. 6:2 (Peshitta uses “life” for ‘salvation’); etc.

⁴ Post-exilic Hebrew (e.g. in the biblical books Ezra & Nehemiah) does contain Aramized words, but see the following list of unusual Aramaisms in part one of Oo.1.16 which suggest an Aramaic sub-text and incomplete translation: “קודסא” for “הקודש” (Act. 1:5,8); “כהנא” for “הכהן” (Act. 9:2); “מרן” for “אדונינו” (Eph. 6:21,23); “ידענין” for “יודעים אנחנו” (1Cor. 8:4); “רצונה” for “רצונו” (1Cor. 7:37); “העמיד” for “הטביל” and “תעמדו” for “תטבילו” (Act. 1:5), etc.

⁵ Only includes Revelation, written in small cursive script.

indicate mistranslations in the Greek version.¹ It does not contain the many Peshitta-based Aramaisms found in part one of the manuscript,² and can in no way be seen as a translation from the Greek, Latin or Aramaic versions.

Evidence of Authenticity and Interesting Readings

This Hebrew manuscript of Revelation is the most interesting and amazing version of the book known to us.³ In this section we will discuss a few of the many interesting differences between the Hebrew and Greek traditions, as well as linguistic indications of authenticity in this Hebrew manuscript.

Hebrew title of the Book of Revelation

Incidentally, we don't need to search very far to find interesting differences in the Hebrew Revelation. In fact, the first interesting difference is in chapter one, verse one!

¹ Examples will be explained below in: Evidence of Authenticity.

² Post-exilic Hebrew did use some Aramized words. Unlike the first part of this manuscript, the few Aramaic words that do occur in this Hebrew Revelation do not correspond to the forms used in the Peshitta. For example, Rev. 8:1 uses the Biblical Aramaic expression “כְּשַׁעָה חֲדָא” which indicates ‘a moment’ rather than ‘an hour’.

³ We have also investigated other Hebrew copies of Revelation: Sloane 237 from the British library, Neofiti.33 from the Vatican Library, Hébreu 131 from the National Library of France – none of which proved to be linguistically authentic.

"These are the confidential counsels (sodot) which YHWH¹ gave to Yeshua² Ha-Mashiach³..."⁴

The very word from which the title 'Revelation' is usually obtained, is different in this Hebrew version! Rather than the expected 'revelation' which would be 'chazon'⁵ in Hebrew, we find 'sodot' instead.

'Sodot' is the plural form of 'sod,' and does not mean "revelation," but rather "confidential counsels" or "secrets." Thus the Hebrew title for the Book of Revelation should really be Ele Ha-Sodot,⁶ meaning 'These are the Confidential Counsels.' To some people this might sound like a meaningless

² The Hebrew name for 'Jesus'.

³ Or 'The Messiah.'

⁴ Rev. 1:1, translated from Oo.1.16.

⁵ Or 'Chizayon,' "חִזְיוֹן" or "חִזְיוֹן" in Hebrew – See translations by Franz Delitzsch and by Salkinson / Ginsburg.

variant, but interestingly, this Hebrew word ‘sod’ is repeated in several passages throughout the book.

Authentic Hebrew documents often contain such repeated keywords, and this can link together some seemingly unrelated verses or passages. Let’s consider an example from the Tanach (Old Testament):

Jeremiah 1:11-12: “‘What do you see Yirmeyahu?’¹ Then I said, ‘I see an almond branch.’ Then YHWH said to me, ‘You have seen well, for I am watching over my word to do it.’”²

In most English translations it is very difficult to see any connection between this vision and its interpretation. What does ‘an almond branch’ have to do with ‘watching’?

Well, in Hebrew this makes perfect sense, as a key root-word is repeated in the vision as well as in the interpretation! The Hebrew word for “almond” is ‘shaqed,’ and the Hebrew word for “watching” is ‘shoqed.’ Both these words are formed from the same root-word as shown below:

Root-word:	שָׁקַד	Shaqad
Almond:	שָׁקֵד	Shaqed
Watching:	שׁוֹקֵד	Shoqed

² Jer. 1:11-12, Translated from the Masoretic Text. In Hebrew:
"מַה־אַתָּה רֹאֶה יִרְמְיָהוּ וַאֲמַר מִקֵּל שָׁקֵד אֲנִי רֹאֶה: וַיֹּאמֶר יְהוָה אֵלַי הִיטַבְתָּ לְרֹאֹת כִּי־שָׁקֵד אֲנִי עַל־דְּבָרִי לַעֲשׂוֹתוֹ:"

Sadly, such keyword connections in the original Hebrew are nearly always lost in translation, not only in English but even in Greek! The Greek Septuagint translators rendered the Hebrew words 'shaged' and 'shoqed' as two Greek words which sound very different: 'karuinen' and 'egregora.'¹

Because most languages do not use similar words for 'almonds' and 'watching,' only the original Hebrew version fully preserves this beautiful keyword link.²

Now, with this background, let's get back to Revelation and the Hebrew word Sod. Not only does this word occur in chapter one verse one, but also in:

Revelation 1:20: "Now the confidential counsel (sod) of the seven stars..."

Revelation 10:7: "...all these confidential counsels (sodot) of YHWH will be completed..."

Revelation 17:5: "...The secret (sod) of the Great City Babel..."

² Second-hand translations can use (i) "almond" and "watching" which do not have any similarities in sound or meaning in most languages, or (ii) could be overly literal and translate both these words as "watching." But either way, half the original meaning is lost. In Hebrew the words 'shaged' and 'shoqed' perform double duty: they mean "almond" and "watching" and at the same time they have similar sounds as well as similar literal meanings.

Revelation 17:7: "...I want to tell you the secret (sod) of the woman..."

Thus in the Hebrew version there is a clear theme throughout the book, starting in chapter one, verse one!

However, the Greek version of Revelation uses 'apokalupsis'¹ (meaning 'appearance' or 'revelation') in chapter one verse one, probably to interpret or explain to the reader that the secrets are now revealed. But just as we saw in the above example from Jeremiah, part of this keyword-based theme is lost in the Greek translation. The Greek word 'apokalupsis' only occurs once in the entire Greek Revelation – with zero repetition! Also, reconstructed Hebrew translations which follow the Greek reading, all use words related to 'reveal' or 'appear'² in this verse, unlike this Hebrew manuscript.

Thus the Hebrew reading of Oo.1.16 for Revelation 1:1 is linguistically authentic, and not a second-hand translation, because:

1. The Hebrew reading enables a keyword-based theme throughout the book, and

² "חזיון" (vision / revelation) and "חזיון" (vision / revelation) are generally used in translations - see translations by Franz Delitzsch and by Salkinson / Ginsburg. Others use e.g. "התגלויות" (revelation) - see Hébreu 131 from the National Library of France.

2. the Hebrew reading differs¹ from the Greek, Latin, and Aramaic versions by not using any form of 'reveal' or 'appear' in chapter one, verse one.²

If the Hebrew Revelation of Oo.1.16 derived from any Greek-based version, the above difference should not have existed.

Hebrew keyword repetition

Another example of section linking is found in the letter to the assembly of Smyrna. Even in standard English translations we can see that some form of the word 'die' is repeated in the introduction, exhortation, and promise sections:

Introduction: "The words of the first and the last, who died and came to life."³

Exhortation: "Be faithful unto death..."⁴

Promise: "The one who conquers will not be hurt by the second death."⁵

¹ Some other keyword-based themes can also be seen in the Greek and Greek-based translations, and such themes which are visible in all versions cannot indicate authenticity for any particular version.

² The Hebrew manuscript does have the word "revealed" in an introductory scribal heading, but not in the actual text of chapter one verse one, where it would be expected if it were a translation from any Greek-based version of Revelation.

³ Rev. 2:8, ESV.

⁴ Rev. 2:10, ESV.

⁵ Rev. 2:11, ESV.

Although the above theme with the keyword “die” is visible in any translation of Revelation, a second keyword is also repeated in this Hebrew manuscript of Revelation:

Acknowledgment: “I know your works and your sufferings...”¹

Exhortation: “...you will have suffering for ten days...”²

Promise: “Whosoever overcomes will not have suffering from the last death.”³

The Hebrew word repeated three times is “צער” (tša’ar) or “צערות” (tša’arot) in the plural.

Although the Greek and Latin versions use the same word for ‘suffering’ twice,⁴ this Hebrew manuscript repeats the same word a third time in the concluding section!

Following the Greek tradition, the Aramaic Peshitta and Greek-to-Hebrew translations do repeat the word for ‘suffering’ in verses 9 and 10, but not in verse 11.⁵ Why can’t any Greek-

¹ Rev. 2:8 [2:9], translated from Oo.1.16.

² Rev. 2:9 [2:10], translated from Oo.1.16.

³ Rev. 2:10 [2:11], translated from Oo.1.16.

⁴ See below, the Greek, Latin and Aramaic words used in Rev. 2:9-11 which correspond to the repeated Hebrew word Tsa’ar.

Greek: “θλιψιν... θλιψιν ...ἀδικοηθῆ”

Latin: “tribulationem... tribulationem ... lædetur”

⁵ Aramaic Peshitta: “אולצנך ... אולצנא...נהר”

Dalman / Delitzsch: “צרתך ... בצרה... ינוק”

Salkinson / Ginsburg: “צרתך ... צרה... יפגע בו”

National Library of France, Hébreu 131: “צרתך ... צרה... ינוק” based Hebrew translations repeat the same word again in verse 11? Because the Greek subtext of these translations uses a very different word in verse 11 than earlier in verses 9 and 10, and thus all subsequent translations follow suit.

Thus, the repeated keyword in this particular Hebrew manuscript (in verses 9, 10 and 11) is clear evidence that it cannot possibly be a translation from Greek, Latin nor Aramaic. This means that the Oo.1.16 Hebrew manuscript of Revelation has to derive from the original Hebrew version, as it preserves keyword themes which were lost in the Greek version and subsequent translations.

Hebrew wordplay

Similar to Hebrew keyword themes, Hebrew word play is also an important indication of authenticity. A good example of Hebrew word play is found in Revelation 3:

“Thus says... he who has the key of Dawid, who opens and no one is able to shut, and who shuts and no one is able to open:⁸ ‘I know your works. Look, I gave before you an open door and no one is able to shut it...”¹

This Hebrew wordplay involves the words “key,” “open” and “door.” Although we can see a logical or functional connection in any language, this Hebrew manuscript uses the same root in each of these words, which results in a beautiful word play with internal rhyme:

Root-word:	פתח	Patach
The key:	המפתח	Ha-Maphteach
Who opens:	הפותח	Ha-Poteach
To open:	לפתוח	Liphtoach
Open (adjective):	פתוח	Patuach
Door:	פתח	Petach

This internal rhyme between the words ‘key,’ ‘open’ and ‘door’ is neither found in the Greek, Latin, nor Aramaic versions of Revelation!¹ First of all, this indicates that Revelation was originally dictated by Yeshua in Hebrew, as this word play is only possible in Hebrew!

Secondly, the internal rhyme again shows that this particular manuscript of Revelation is authentic. Although Greek-to-Hebrew translations can reclaim part of this word play,² it is not as impressive as the original Hebrew reading. These

English	Hebrew (Oo.1.16)	Greek TR	Latin Vulgate	Aramaic Peshitta
the key	המפתח	τὴν κλεῖδα	clavem	קלידא
who opens	הפותח	ὁ ἀνοίγων	qui aperit	דפתח
door	פתח	θύραν	ostium	תרעא

² In the translations by Franz Delitzsch and by Salkinson / Ginsburg only the words for “open” and “key” are from the same root.

translations do not use the word 'petach' for "door," but rather 'sha'ar' or 'delet.' As a result, only the words for "open" and "key" can rhyme in Hebrew translations derived from Greek, but the word for "door" does not form part of the rhyme.

Thus, no Hebrew translation derived from Greek should contain this full word play, and yet the Hebrew Revelation in the Oo.1.16 manuscript does. One cannot escape the conclusion that this particular Hebrew manuscript must be a faithful copy which contains original Hebrew readings and word plays.

Will the day-night cycle cease on the new earth?

Many people perceive the Book of Revelation as a difficult prophetic book, partly because it can be challenging to reconcile certain prophecies in the Old Testament with those given in Revelation. For example, Revelation 22:5 translated from Greek says:

"Night will no longer exist..."¹

And chapter 21:25 states:

"its gates will never be shut by day, for there will be no night there."²

¹ Rev. 22:5, Holman Christian Standard Bible. Some translations: "night will be no more".

² Rev. 21:25, translated from Greek.

Based on the above verses translated from the Greek version of Revelation, many scholars¹ have concluded that the day-night cycle will cease on the new earth, and that it will always be day as "its gates will never be shut by day, for there will be no night there."²

However, Revelation 20:10 mentions "day and night," and chapter 22:2 mentions "every month," which could only be possible if day and night continued as before.

YHWH himself also declared that Sabbaths and New Moons will be kept on the new earth:

"For as the new heavens and the new earth which I will make, will remain before me, declares YHWH, so will your offspring and your name remain. And it will be, that from Sabbath to Sabbath, and from New Moon to New Moon,³ all flesh will come to bow down before me, says YHWH."⁴

¹ See e.g. Exposition of the Book of Revelation, New Testament Commentary, vol. 20, pp. 579, 582: "the cessation of night... ..in the new creation the cosmic division of night and day will have ceased to function"; Revelation, Baker exegetical commentary on the New Testament, p. 764; The New International Greek Testament Commentary, The book of Revelation, p. 1096; The teacher's commentary, p. 1088; etc.

² Rev. 21:25, translated from Greek.

³ Or "every week on the Sabbath, and every month on the New Moon..."

⁴ Is. 66:22-23, translated from the Masoretic Text.

Without the day and night cycle, Sabbath is impossible, and without the lunar cycles, new moons are impossible too.

In Jeremiah chapter 33, it is stated that the day-night cycle is just as permanent as YHWH's covenant with David!

"Thus says YHWH, 'If you can break my covenant with the day, and my covenant with the night, so that daytime and night-time will not be in their time – then my covenant will also be broken with Dawid my servant, that he will have no son ruling as king upon his throne..."¹

Yeshua Messiah is the ultimate fulfilment of this prophecy about the 'Son of David.' So how can we on the one hand believe that the day-night cycle will cease, but on the other hand still think that the covenant with David regarding the Messiah will never be broken?

Based on the above-mentioned verses from Isaiah and Jeremiah, there is absolutely no way that the day-night cycle will cease. So, why does the Greek Revelation only mention daytime in chapter 21:25 as if there will be no night at all?

² Rev. 21:25, translated from Greek Textus Receptus.

Remarkably, the Hebrew version of Revelation quotes¹ from the Old Testament both in chapter 21:25 and 22:5, and this clears up most of the confusion caused by these verses in the Greek version! Revelation 21:25 (mostly quoted from Isaiah 60:11):

Oo.1.16:

"וּפְתָחוּ שַׁעְרֵיךָ תָמִיד יוֹמָם וּלַיְלָה לֹא יִסָּגְרוּ כִּי לֹא יִהְיֶה לַיְלָה"

= "And your gates will be open continually, day and night they will not be shut, for there will not be night."

In this Hebrew version of Revelation there is no hint that the day-night cycle will cease as it clearly mentions both "day and night."

But, how is it possible that "day and night" "there will not be night"? How can there be night, and at the same time, no night? This is only a seeming contradiction. In Hebrew, 'night' and 'darkness' are synonymous.² The very first mention of 'night' in the Bible (Genesis 1:5), is where Elohim calls 'the darkness' 'night'!

¹ Note that there are some minor differences between these verses in the Hebrew Revelation and the Masoretic text. This clearly shows that these phrases were NOT fraudulently inserted into Revelation just to conform it to the Old Testament. If that were the case, then why would there be any differences from the Masoretic Text?

² For examples where "night" refers to darkness and not to a specific time of the day, see Ps. 139:11, Mic. 3:6, etc.

"Then Elohim called the light day, and the darkness he called night..."¹

Thus the correct understanding of Revelation 21:25 is that during the day and night, there will be no darkness in the New Jerusalem!

Conversely, in the Greek translation the first occurrence of "night" in Revelation 21:25 is omitted, possibly to avoid the seeming contradiction of 'night' and 'no night' at the same time. Regrettably, this omission in the Greek version only increases the possibility for confusion, as it suggests that only day will exist but no night.

Now let's discuss Revelation 22:5. In the Hebrew Revelation this verse is mostly quoted from Isaiah 60:19!

Oo.1.16:

"ולא יהיה עוד בה השמש לאור יומם וללילה והירח לא
יאיר לך והיה לך ה' לאור עולם ואלהיך לתפארתך"

= "And in it the sun will no more be for light by day, neither for brightness will the moon shine for you,² but YHWH will be an eternal light for you, and your Elohim will be your glory."

This verse again implies both daytime and night-time, as both the sun and the moon are mentioned! During daytime and night-time the New Jerusalem won't need any light except that of YHWH!

² Could also be translated: "And in it the sun will no more be for light by day, and for brightness; neither will the moon shine for you..."

It is noteworthy that the Greek version attempts to simplify the Hebrew readings, and 'correct' the seeming contradictions of 'night' and 'no night' at the same time:

"Night will no longer exist, and people will not need lamplight or sunlight, because the Lord God will give them light..."¹

This is typical of translations, and indicates that the Hebrew reading is the original while the Greek reading is a translation which attempts to superficially 'fix' the problem.

However, careful study shows that the more difficult, seeming contradictory Hebrew Revelation is perfectly understandable. It matches the Old Testament prophecies about the permanence of the day-night cycle as well as the Hebrew meaning of 'night'.

How can the tree of life be on both sides of the river?

The "tree of life" in Revelation 22 is another controversial topic. Translated from Greek, Revelation 22:2 reads:

"On both sides of the river was the tree of life bearing 12 kinds of fruit... The leaves of the tree are for healing the nations"¹

How can the "tree of life" be on both sides of the river at the same time? This question has intrigued many people. Without the essential knowledge of the Hebrew meaning of "tree," many erroneous interpretations have been fabricated.

Some have suggested that the tree of life grows in the middle of the river with branches extending to both sides.² Others think that the tree of life has a split trunk extending across the river, so that the tree literally grows on both sides at the same time.³ It has even been speculated that the tree of life is not on both sides of the river, but rather the river flows on both sides of the tree!⁴

² "DURHAM suppose[d], the tree was in the midst of the river, and extending its branches to both banks" – Robert Jamieson, A. R. Fausset, and David Brown, A Commentary, Critical and Explanatory on the Whole Bible, par. 24222.

³ "...artists have represented a split-trunk tree, with one half on either side of the river of life, meeting up in the middle..." – J. Kluttz, The Spirit World, p. 55.

⁴ "MEDE suppose[d]... in the midst of the plain, which itself is in the midst of the river's branches, stood the tree" – Robert Jamieson, A. R. Fausset, and David Brown, A Commentary, Critical and Explanatory on the Whole Bible, par. 24222.

"This would mean... ..in the middle of the city's street is a single tree of life, located between either side of the river, 'which at this point has diverged into two branches.'" – The New International Greek Testament

Others say there will be three trees, one in the middle of the river, and one on either side.¹

Further confusion is caused by the statement that this tree will bear twelve kinds of fruit! Biblically speaking, it is absolutely impossible for any tree to bear more than one kind of fruit. Consider the following passages in Genesis:

“Let the earth cause to sprout... fruit trees bearing fruit according to their kind...”²

“The earth brought forth... trees bearing fruit with their seed inside them, according to their kind...”³

The same pattern of “according to their kind” is repeated over and over throughout Genesis chapter one. The New Testament also confirms that it is impossible for one tree to bear various kinds of fruit:

¹ “for there were three trees; one in the street, and one on each side of the river” – B. Blayney, et al., Treasury of Scripture Knowledge, enhanced and expanded, vol. 2, p. 117.

² Genesis 1:11, translated from the Masoretic Text.

³ Genesis 1:12, translated from the Masoretic Text.

"By their deeds you will recognize them – for a man is not able to gather grapes from a bramble,¹ neither figs from thorn bushes."²

"Or is a tree of dates able to give oil, or a vine – figs? So the fountain is not able to give salt and sweet waters."³

Is it really possible that after all, YHWH is going to change His mind and create one tree which produces various kinds of fruit? One tree with a split trunk across the river? One tree with enough leaves to provide all the nations with medicine?

Remarkably, the Hebrew Bible again holds the key to understanding this passage! Did you know that in the above verses from Genesis 1:11 and 1:12, every occurrence of the English word "trees" (plural) is actually singular in the original Hebrew? The Hebrew word "עֵץ" ('ets) in the singular form is very often used to refer to many trees collectively. When this Hebrew word is used in the plural "עֵצִים" ('etsim), it usually refers to hewn down trees or wood, and not to growing trees! For example, Genesis 22:7:

"הִנֵּה הָאֵשׁ וְהָעֵצִים וְאֵימָה הַשֶּׁה לְעֹלָה"⁴

¹ Hebrew "סנה." Acc. to some sources, a brambleberry or blackberry bush.

² Matthew 7:16, translated from Hebrew, ms. Vat. Ebr. 100.

³ James 3:12, translated from C.U.L. Oo.1.32.

⁴ Gen. 22:7, Masoretic text.

= "Here is the fire and the wood, but where is the lamb for a burnt offering?"

Thus, in Hebrew one does not generally refer to living / growing trees by using the plural noun "עצים," but rather by using the singular noun "עץ" collectively. Therefore, the singular form "tree" in Revelation 22:2 does not even hint at one single tree, but rather refers to many trees as implied by the immediate context – they grow on both sides of the river!

Also, the Hebrew Revelation confirms that the "tree of life" refers to various kinds of fruit trees, not to one kind bearing twelve different kinds of fruit! Revelation 22:2:

Oo.1.16:

"באמצע הרחובות ועל הנחל יעלה על שפתו מזה ומזה
כל עץ מאכל ועץ החיים ועליו היה שניים עשר מיני פירות
והיה פריו למאכל ועלהו לתרופה"

= "And in the midst¹ of the plains, even beside the stream, there grew up on its bank – on this side and on that side – every tree of food, even the tree of life.² And on it were twelve kinds of fruit, and its fruit was for food, and its foliage for healing."³

² This verse from the Hebrew Revelation is mostly quoted from Eze. 47:12. See also Eze. 47:7.

³ For better understanding in English, the Hebrew collective use can be translated as plural (Most English translations do that with Eze. 47:12). "And among the plains, even besides the stream, there grew up all kinds of fruit trees – on both sides of its banks – namely, the trees of Take note that “every tree of food” is collectively referred to as “the tree of life.” Thus “tree” in this context means “trees” (plural).

Ezekiel 47:12 confirms that fresh fruit will be produced every month (12 times), and Ezekiel 47:7 establishes the fact that there will be many trees, not just one!

“...on the banks of the stream were exceedingly many trees, on this side and on that side.”¹

Thus there is no reason for creative speculation about the tree of life. The Hebrew Old Testament and the Hebrew Revelation are in perfect agreement. There will be many trees growing on both sides of the river, all kinds of fruit trees, not just one tree or one kind of tree.

Is Yeshua the Alpha and Omega?

It is common knowledge that Alpha and Omega are the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet. Having already discussed some logical and linguistic evidence for the Hebrew origin of Revelation, it is rather obvious that this Greek expression ‘Alpha and Omega’ is not the original expression used in Revelation, but just the Greek translation thereof.

The question thus arises – what is the original Hebrew phrase translated into Greek as ‘Alpha’ and ‘Omega’? Most people life. And on them were twelve kinds of fruit, and their fruit was for food, and their leaves for healing”.

think it should be 'Aleph' and 'Taw,' the first and last letters of the Hebrew alphabet. But note that the expression "אלף ותו" (Aleph and Taw) or similar, never occurs in the Hebrew Old Testament – not even once!

There is a common misunderstanding that the expression 'Aleph and Taw' is the same as the Hebrew object marker "את" (et), which is spelled with an Aleph and a Taw, but compare the difference below:

"את" = marker of object in a sentence.¹

"אלף ותו" = "Aleph and Taw" or 'first and last.'

The Hebrew word "את" (et) is never used with the same meaning as the expression 'Aleph and Taw.' 'Aleph and Taw' indicates 'first and last,' while the object marker 'et' merely indicates the object(s) in a sentence, or occasionally it places emphasis on a certain word. Below are some examples. The position of the Hebrew word 'et' will be indicated by "(object:)" in each translated phrase:

Genesis 1:1:

"בְּרֵאשִׁית בָּרָא אֱלֹהִים אֶת הַשָּׁמַיִם וְאֶת הָאָרֶץ:"²

= "In the beginning Elohim Created (object:) the heavens and (object:) the earth."

¹ There are several other Hebrew words also spelled "את" but none of these mean "first and last."

² Gen. 1:1, Masoretic text.

Exodus 2:1:

”וַיֵּלֶךְ אִישׁ מִבֵּית לֵוִי וַיִּקַּח אֶת-בֵּת-לֵוִי׃¹”

= “Then a man from the house of Lewi went and took (object:) the daughter of Lewi.”

Often this object marker “את” (et) is essential to avoid confusion between the subject and object of a verb – compare the following two phrases:

Genesis 5:32: “...וַיּוֹלֶד נֹחַ...” = “...then Noah begot...”

Genesis 5:25: “...וַיּוֹלֶד אֶת-לָמֶךְ...” = “...then he begot (object:) Lamech...”

The difference between the above translations is indicated and required by the presence or absence of the marker “את” (et). Below is another clear example:

Joshua 7:24: “...וַיִּקַּח יְהוֹשֻׁעַ...” = “...then Yehoshua took...”

Numbers 27:22: “...וַיִּקַּח אֶת-יְהוֹשֻׁעַ...” = “...then he took (object:) Yehoshua...”

In the above examples it is clear that “את” (et) does not at all mean ‘first and last,’ but only marks the object. In fact, there is no single example of “את” in the entire Old Testament with the meaning ‘first and last.’

Seeing that the expression 'Aleph and Taw' does not occur in the Old Testament at all, and the various Hebrew words spelled "את" never mean 'first and last' – does it make sense that the original Hebrew Revelation would have used the expression 'Aleph and Taw'? Or could it be that the expression 'Alpha and Omega' in the Greek Revelation is just a fancy translation of a different original Hebrew phrase?

Let's compare the Hebrew vs. Greek versions of Revelation – there are four verses in the Greek Textus Receptus which use 'Alpha and Omega':

Revelation 1:8:

Greek Textus Receptus:¹ "Εγώ εἰμι τὸ Α καὶ τὸ Ω, ἀρχὴ καὶ τέλος..."

= "I am the A(lpha) and the O(mega), the beginning and the end..."

Oo.1.16: "אני הוא הראשון והאחרון תחילת והסוף..."

= "I am the first and the last, the beginning and the end..."

The Hebrew Revelation uses 'first and last' instead of 'Alpha and Omega'! This is very unique, as all reconstructed Hebrew translations from Greek, Latin or Aramaic use either 'Aleph and Taw' or 'Alpha and Omega'.² This unique difference suggests that the Hebrew Revelation is not merely a secondhand translation from Greek. Below are the three other applicable verses:

¹ Byzantine MT etc. read "Αλφα" instead of just "Α".

² Dalman / Delitzsch: "הָאֵלֶף וְהַתָּו"

Salkinson / Ginsburg: "אֵלֶף וְתָו"

Revelation 1:11:

Greek Textus Receptus:¹ "Εγώ εἰμι τὸ Α καὶ τὸ Ω,..."

= "I am the A(lpha) and the O(mega)..."

Oo.1.16: "...אני הראשון והאחרון..."

= "I am the first and the last..."

Revelation 21:6:

Greek Textus Receptus:² "ἐγώ εἰμι τὸ Α καὶ τὸ Ω, ἡ ἀρχὴ καὶ τὸ τέλος..."

= "I am the A(lpha) and the O(mega), the beginning and the end..."

Oo.1.16: "...אני הראשון והאחרון תחילת והסוף..."

= "I am the first and the last, the beginning and the end..."

Revelation 22:13:

National Library of France, Hébreu 131: "אֶלְפָּא וְאֵמֶנָה"

² Byzantine MT etc. read "Αλφα" instead of just "Α".

Greek Textus Receptus:¹ "ἐγώ εἰμι τὸ Α καὶ τὸ Ω, ἀρχὴ καὶ τέλος, ὁ πρῶτος καὶ ὁ ἔσχατος,"

= "I am the A(lpha) and the O(mega), the beginning and the end, the first and the last."

Oo.1.16: "אני הראשון והאחרון תחילת והסוף..."

= "I am the first and the last, the beginning and the end..."

It is fascinating that the Hebrew Revelation does not use 'Aleph and Taw' nor 'Alpha and Omega' even once! Instead, it uses the phrase 'first and last,' which is also (not surprisingly) found in the Old Testament!

Isaiah 44:6:

"כֹּה־אָמַר יְהוָה מֶלֶךְ־יִשְׂרָאֵל וְגֹאֲלִי יְהוָה צְבָאוֹת אֲנִי
רִאשׁוֹן וְאַחֲרֹן וְיִמְבֹּלְעֵנִי אֵין אֱלֹהִים:"²

= "Thus says YHWH the king of Yisrael, and his Redeemer YHWH Tseva'ot, I am the first, and I am the last, and except for me there is no Elohim."

It is very important to note that in Revelation 22:13, Yeshua himself claims to be the first and the last! When compared with the above verse from Isaiah 44 it is clear that Yeshua

¹ Byzantine MT etc. read "Ἀλφά" instead of just "Α", and place the phrase 'the beginning and the end' after 'the first and the last'.

² Is. 44:6, Masoretic Text.

claimed that he himself is YHWH (and not the Greek 'Alpha and Omega')!

Isaiah 48:12-13:

...אֲנִי-הוּא אֲנִי רִאשׁוֹן אֶף אֲנִי אַחֲרֹן: אֶף-יְדִי יִסְדָּה אֶרֶץ
וְיָמִינִי טִפְּחָה שָׁמַיִם...¹

= "...I am he: I am the first, also I am the last, also my hand founded the earth, and my right hand spread out the heavens..."

By claiming to be the first and the last, Yeshua claimed that he is YHWH, and the Creator of heaven and earth!²

As shown above, the Hebrew Revelation clearly matches the Old Testament phrase 'first and last,' and neither uses the Greek 'Alpha and Omega' nor the non-Biblical Hebrew expression 'Aleph and Taw'!

Inversed word order

Inversed word order is one of the frequent differences between the original Hebrew and the second-hand Greek Septuagint translation of the Old Testament.

Possibly for stylistic reasons, or otherwise simply because of carelessness, the Greek translators of the Septuagint often reversed the order of two words or phrases when they translated from the original Hebrew text.

² Compare John chapter one in the www.HebrewGospels.com version.

This phenomenon should not be confused with differences in syntactical order, which is required by Greek vs. Hebrew grammar. For example, the Greek word 'gar' (meaning 'for,' etc.) usually stands in the 'second position' (as the second word in a clause), but the Hebrew equivalent 'ki' is normally in the 'first position' (similar to English). When scholars revert a Greek translation back to Hebrew, they can easily move the Hebrew equivalent 'ki' to the correct position in the clause, as this difference is simply required by Hebrew grammar as opposed to Greek grammar.

Below is an example where the Septuagint Greek translation has two words in the opposite order than the Hebrew Masoretic Text, without any grammatical requirement:

Genesis 30:43:

Hebrew Masoretic Text:

שִׁפְחוֹת וְעֲבָדִים וְנִמְלִים וְחֲמָרִים

= "female servants and male servants and camels and asses"

Greek Septuagint: "παῖδες καὶ παιδίσκαι καὶ κάμηλοι καὶ ὄνοι"

= "male servants and female servants and camels and asses"

The order of the words is clearly different in the Greek translation than the original Hebrew.

Now let us look at an example where two phrases are in the opposite order:

Ezekiel 5:12:

Hebrew Masoretic Text:

"...בְּחָרֶב יִפְּלוּ סְבִיבוֹתֶיךָ... לְכָל-רוּחַ אֶזְרָה..."

= "...will fall round about you by the sword... I will scatter to every wind..."

Greek Septuagint: "εἰς πάντα ἄνεμον σκορπιῶ αὐτούς... ἐν ῥομφαίᾳ πεσοῦνται κύκλῳ σου..."

= "...I will scatter them to every wind... will fall round about you by the sword..."

In this example it is clear that the two phrases are in the opposite order in the Hebrew, compared to the Greek. This phenomenon is very common when comparing the Greek translation vs. the Hebrew text of the Old Testament. In fact, there are at least eighty¹ (80) verses in Genesis alone, where the Greek Septuagint uses a different² order than the Hebrew, without any grammatical requirement!

¹ Manually confirmed Accordance search using the MT-LXX parallel.

² Mostly two words or phrases are placed in the opposite order (as shown in the above examples), but some differences are more complicated. Though these differences are often invisible in English

To reiterate, it is evident that Greek translators / editors very often made these changes in word / phrase order, even where grammar does not require it to be done.

Scholars have attempted to translate the Greek Septuagint back to Hebrew in an attempt to reclaim the Hebrew text on which the Septuagint was based. However, except where grammar demands a different order, even scholars do not know in which instances the word order needs to be changed, and in which the word order needs to remain the same as in the Greek text.

Similarly, Greek-based Hebrew translations of Revelation leave e.g. lists of nouns in the exact same order as in the Greek, because grammar does not demand a specific order for such lists of nouns.¹

So, if this Hebrew version of Revelation is simply a translation, we should never see non-grammatical inversed word order when compared to the standard versions – but we do. Below are some² examples where the word order in the Hebrew Revelation is different than the Greek, without any grammatical requirement:

Revelation 3:12:

Oo.1.16: "השם מירושלים החדש העיר אלהי" translations of the Masoretic Text vs. the Septuagint, they are very clearly visible in the actual Greek vs. Hebrew texts.

¹ See e.g. translations by Franz Delitzsch and by Salkinson / Ginsburg.

² There are many other occurrences which are not listed here.

= "the name of the new Yerushalayim,¹ the city of my Elohim"

Greek Textus Receptus: "τὸ ὄνομα τῆς πόλεως τοῦ Θεοῦ μου, τῆς καινῆς Ἱερουσαλήμ"

= "the name of the city of my God, the new Jerusalem"

Revelation 4:5:

Oo.1.16: "קולות ורעמים וברקים"

= "voices and thunders and lightnings"

Greek Textus Receptus:² "ἀστραπαὶ καὶ βρονταὶ καὶ φωναί"

= "lightnings and thunders and voices"

Revelation 5:1:

Oo.1.16:

"וזה שישב על הכסא ראיתי ביד ימינו ספר אחד"

= "And he who sat on the throne – I saw a scroll in his right hand..."

² Other Greek versions "ἀστραπαὶ καὶ φωναὶ καὶ βρονταί" – still in different order than Oo.1.16.

Greek Textus Receptus: "Καὶ εἶδον ἐπὶ τὴν δεξιὰν τοῦ καθημένου ἐπὶ τοῦ θρόνου βιβλίον"

= "And I saw in the right hand of him who sat on the throne a book..."

Revelation 9:15:

Oo.1.16:

"להמית השליש מבני אדם בשעה וביום ובחודש ובשנה אחד"

= 'to kill the third of the sons of man in an hour and in a day and in a month and in a year'

Greek Textus Receptus: "τὴν ὥραν καὶ ἡμέραν καὶ μῆνα καὶ ἐνιαυτόν, ἵνα ἀποκτείνωσι τὸ τρίτον τῶν ἀνθρώπων."

= "...an hour and a day and a month and a year, to kill the third of men"

Revelation 14:9:

Oo.1.16: "להפסל ולהחיה"

= "to the image and to the animal"

Greek Textus Receptus: "τὸ θηρίον... καὶ τὴν εἰκόνα"

= "the animal and its image"

From the above examples, it is evident that the Hebrew Revelation often has a different word order than the Greek translation, just as the Hebrew Masoretic Text often has words or phrases in an order which differs from the second-hand Septuagint translation.

In each of the above examples from the Hebrew Revelation:

1. There is no grammatical requirement for the difference in word order, and
2. the scholarly Greek-based translations to Hebrew have each of these phrases in the same order as the Greek, and
3. the Hebrew word order in Oo.1.16 is also different than that of the Aramaic Peshitta and Latin Vulgate.

These differences in word order in this particular Hebrew Revelation is yet another clear indication that it is linguistically authentic. It must derive from the original Hebrew version and cannot be obtained from the Greek, Aramaic, or Latin versions.

Gapping

Word 'gapping' is frequent in the Hebrew Old Testament as well as in other authentic Hebrew documents. Gapped words are understood in the Hebrew text without being explicitly written out. Greek translators often inserted these 'gapped' words into their translations, and once that is done, we have a problem. When such a Greek translation is reverted back to Hebrew, nobody knows which nouns, verbs, etc. were originally gapped, and which were part of the original text.

Thus, Greek-based Hebrew translations of Revelation simply have the Greek text translated into Hebrew with virtually no gapping. Below we will focus on two kinds of 'gapping' in the Hebrew Revelation of Oo.1.16 that cannot be reclaimed from the Greek, Aramaic, or Latin versions, and are thus evidence of linguistic authenticity. In these examples, Hebrew grammar and syntax do not require gapping and thus reconstructed Hebrew translations from Greek (e.g. by Franz Delitzch and by Salkinson etc.) do not have these words gapped.

Gapping of explicit subject:

Explicit subject gapping is very common in the Hebrew Old Testament. A sentence (or paragraph) will often only define the subject once (or perhaps twice), and afterwards simply refer to the subject as "he," "she" or "they," etc. We even do this in English, but not to the same extent as found in Classical / Biblical Hebrew. Below is an example of explicit subject gapping:

Genesis 3:1:

Hebrew Masoretic Text: "וַיֹּאמֶר אֶל-תְּאֵשֶׁת"'

= "then he [the serpent] said to the woman"

In the above example, the explicit subject [the serpent] has been supplied (added) in square brackets, but it is not actually written in the Hebrew Text! We say that the explicit subject is 'gapped,' or 'understood by context.' Only by reading the context can we know that the 'he' in Genesis 3:1 refers to the serpent and not to YHWH nor to Adam.

In cases where confusion might occur, translators often insert the implied explicit subject to help their readers understand the text without any difficulty. (In most translations, this is done without any indication - no brackets or font change is used!) For example, in the above verse from Genesis chapter 3, the Greek Septuagint translation inserts the Greek word for 'serpent' to eliminate any ambiguity.

Genesis 3:1:

Greek Septuagint: "καὶ εἶπεν ὁ ὄφης τῇ γυναικί"

= "then the serpent said to the woman"

Thus, if we compare two texts of the Bible in different languages, and find that an explicit subject is gapped in the one but supplied in the other, we know that the less interpretive version is closer to the original. This argument is especially strong in a context where confusion is likely to occur if the subject is not stated explicitly.¹ Translators always strive to remove any possible ambiguity from their translations. If the resultant translation could cause confusion, translators would not leave out the explicit subject if it existed in the original text.

Now, let's look at such an example of explicit subject gapping in the Hebrew Revelation:

¹ See our introduction to Mark for a good example from the Old Testament. (www.HebrewGospels.com/mark)

Revelation 18:3:

Oo.1.16: "כִּי כֹלֵם שְׁתוּ מִיַּיִנָּה"

= "For all of them have drunk of her wine"

Greek Textus Receptus: "ὅτι ἐκ τοῦ οἴνου... πέπωκε πάντα τὰ ἔθνη"

= "For all nations have drunk of the wine..."

If we read the beginning of verse 3 together with the last part of verse 2, we can see the reason for the addition in the Greek translation:

"And it became a dwelling of satans,¹ and to hide all the unclean ones of the birds and creeping things.³
For all of them have drunk of her wine..."²

At a first glance, one might think that "all of them" refers to the just-mentioned creatures in verse 2, or else the "satans" – but the larger context makes it clear that "all of them" refers to the "nations" as stated four chapters earlier in Revelation 14:8, and not to demons nor animals. Thus, to avoid confusion the Greek translation supplies or adds the explicit subject "nations" – but without indicating that it is an addition.

The gapping of the explicit subject in this context is very good proof that the Hebrew Revelation contained in Oo.1.16 derives from the original Hebrew version and is not a second-hand translation from Greek, Aramaic or Latin.¹

² Rev. 18:2-3, translated from Oo.1.16.

Gapping of explicit object:

Explicit object gapping works just like explicit subject gapping, but the words in question are objects rather than subjects.

Revelation 1:13 is a good example of explicit object gapping in the Hebrew Revelation. Let's compare the Greek tradition vs. Oo.1.16:

Oo.1.16: "בְּנִיהֶם"

= "among them"

Greek Textus Receptus:² "καὶ ἐν μέσῳ τῶν ἑπτὰ λυχνιῶν"

= "among the seven candlesticks"

As explained earlier, translators always strive to clarify and explain any difficulties in the text they are translating. Thus the Greek translation replaces the object "them" with the explanation "seven candlesticks" to avoid any ambiguity. The Greek version supplies or inserts the explicit object.

¹ Neither the Greek, Latin nor Aramaic versions of Revelation has the explicit subject "nations" gapped in Rev. 18:3.

² Note that some Greek manuscripts, e.g. the Alexandrian Codex, do not include the word for 'seven,' though they still supply the word for 'lampstands'.

In the above example, Hebrew grammar does not demand this phrase to be gapped, therefore translations from Greek to Hebrew do not change "the seven candlesticks" to "them."¹ There is no way to know from the Greek text whether this phrase was originally gapped or written. So, the fact that it is gapped in this Hebrew manuscript is strong evidence that the Hebrew reading is authentic, as it could not have derived from the Greek, Aramaic or Latin versions. It also shows that the Greek reading is the interpreted second-hand translation, while the Hebrew reading is the original. Below we will discuss a few more examples.

Revelation 2:10:

Oo.1.16: "אל תירא מהם"

= "Do not be afraid of them"

Greek Textus Receptus: "μηδὲν φοβοῦ ἃ μέλλεις πάσχειν"

= "Do not fear what you are about to suffer"

The Hebrew "them" probably refers to the people who persecuted the believers of Smyrna, but the Greek translation interprets "them" to refer to the sufferings ("what you are about to suffer").

Revelation 4:10a:

¹ Franz Delitzsch: "וּבִתְוֹךְ שְׁבַע הַמְּנֹרֹת" and Salkinson / Ginsburg: "וּבִתְוֹךְ הַמְּנֹרֹת" (Following other Greek manuscripts and not the Textus Receptus).

Oo.1.16: "לפניו"

= "before him"

Greek Textus Receptus: "ἐνώπιον τοῦ καθημένου ἐπὶ τοῦ θρόνου"

= "before the one sitting on the throne"

Revelation 4:10b:

Oo.1.16: "לפניו"

= "before him"

Greek Textus Receptus: "ἐνώπιον τοῦ θρόνου"

= "before the throne"

The Hebrew language uses the same word (or suffix) for 'him' and 'it'. The Greek translators interpreted that the first "him" refers to "the one sitting on the throne," and that the second "him" refers to "the throne" – thus they inserted these explanatory phrases into their translation. Although the Greek explanation is not entirely impossible, the most likely meaning in both cases is that the "him" simply refers to YHWH.

Although in these examples the Hebrew readings could mean the exact same thing as the Greek translations, these are important indications that this Hebrew manuscript is authentic. It cannot derive from the Greek, Aramaic, or Latin versions.

Mistranslation in the Greek version

Revelation 18:13 contains a very interesting variant between the Hebrew and Greek versions:

Greek Textus Receptus:

"...καὶ οἶνον, καὶ ἔλαιον, καὶ σεμίδαλιν, καὶ σῖτον, καὶ κτήνη, καὶ πρόβατα· καὶ ἵππων, καὶ ῥεδῶν, καὶ σωμαίων· καὶ ψυχὰς ἀνθρώπων."

= "...and wine and oil and fine flour and wheat, and animals and sheep and horses and chariots, and slaves – even souls of men."

Oo.1.16:

"ויין ושמן ולחם לבן וחיטים ובקרים וכשבים וסוסים ועגלים ונשמות אדם"

= "And wine and oil and white bread¹ and wheat and cattle and sheep and horses and calves and souls of man."

In the above verse, the Greek version reads "horses and chariots" while the Hebrew reads "horses and calves." So, how did this difference come about? The Greek word "ῥεδῶν" (redon) is not ambiguous and cannot be mistaken for 'calves' which is "μόσχων" (moschon) in Greek. In the Latin and Aramaic versions the meaning "chariots" is equally clear, and thus they provide no solution as to the source of this variant reading.

¹ Could also mean "fine flour".

But what if the Hebrew reading is the original? Could the Greek be a mistranslation of the Hebrew? Unlike Greek, Hebrew uses similar words for chariots and calves!

"עגלים" (agalim) = "calves"

"עגלות" (agalot) = "chariots"¹

The only difference in consonantal spelling between the two Hebrew words above is the masculine plural ending "ים" vs. the feminine plural ending "ות". Could the Greek translator have mistranslated 'agalim' as if it were 'agalot'? Note that the preceding word in Revelation 18:13 is "horses." Horses and chariots often go together, and this might have been the cause of confusion.

At closer inspection we find that the Hebrew reading "calves" is actually very suitable – the other objects mentioned around this word in verse 13b are not man-made objects but rather living creatures.

Considering that the only difference between "עגלים" (agalim) and "עגלות" (agalot) is their gender, and that the preceding word "horses" has a strong connotation with chariots, it is not unlikely that a translator could have rendered "עגלים" as if it were "עגלות".

¹ Reading "עגלות" with different vowels could yield either "chariots" or "heifers" – but "עגלים" means "calves" and cannot mean "chariots."

On the other hand, it is not possible at all that the Greek word "ῥεδῶν" (chariots) could have been translated into Hebrew as "עגלים" (calves) – in the Greek version there is no ambiguity or any scope for possible confusion in translation.

Thus, if the Hebrew is the original, this variant reading is possible in the Greek translation and subsequent versions. But if the Greek, Aramaic or Latin version is the original, this difference should never have existed.

Was YHWH translated as Theos?

Another interesting variant between the Hebrew and Greek versions of Revelation is the frequent¹ use of "YHWH" instead of "Elohim." To be more precise, we are referring to instances where the Greek version uses "θεος" (Theos) while the Hebrew uses the abbreviation "ה'" instead of the expected "אלהים" (Elohim). This Hebrew letter "ה'" (He) with two dots above it is an abbreviation for "השם" (Ha-Shem) which means "The Name."

The fact that this abbreviation 'He' really represents the name YHWH is evident² when the Old Testament is quoted in the Hebrew Revelation, e.g.

Isaiah 6:3:

¹ Apart from the examples given below, see also Rev. 1:2, 1:6, 1:9, 2:17 [2:18], 3:1, 3:2, 4:5, 5:6, 7:3, 7:15, 8:2, 8:4, etc.

² Occasionally this "ה'" also corresponds to "אדני" (Adonai) in the Old Testament, but never to "אלהים" (Elohim).

Hebrew Masoretic Text:

"קָדוֹשׁ אֱלֹהֵינוּ קָדוֹשׁ יְהוָה צְבָאוֹת"

Oo.1.16 (Revelation 4:8) "קדוש קדוש קדוש ה' צבאות"

Psalm 113:1:

Hebrew Masoretic Text:

"הִלְלוּ יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ הִלְלוּ אֶת־שֵׁם יְהוָה:"

Oo.1.16 (Revelation 19:5)

"הללויה הללו עבדי ה' הללו את שם ה'"

Isaiah: 60:19:

Hebrew Masoretic Text:

"וְהָיָה־לְךָ יְהוָה לְאֹר עוֹלָם וְאֱלֹהֶיךָ לְתַפְאֲרָתְךָ:"

Oo.1.16 (Revelation 22:5)

"וְהָיָה לְךָ ה' לְאֹר עוֹלָם וְאֱלֹהֶיךָ וְתַפְאֲרָתְךָ"

The above examples clearly show that this abbreviation "ה'" actually represents the Name YHWH. It was common practice for many scribes to write Ha-Shem or some abbreviation rather than writing the full name "יהוה" (YHWH).

Below are some examples where the Hebrew Revelation indicates YHWH but the Greek version uses Theos:

Revelation 1:1:

Oo.1.16: "נתן ה'"

= "YHWH gave"

Greek Textus Receptus: "ἔδωκεν αὐτῷ ὁ Θεός"

= "Theos gave him"

Revelation 5:6:

Oo.1.16: "וְאֵילֹהֵי הַשְּׁבַע רוּחוֹת ה'"

= "and they are the seven spirits of YHWH"

Greek Textus Receptus: "οἱ εἰς τὰ ἑπτὰ τοῦ Θεοῦ πνεύματα"

= "which are the seven spirits of Theos"

Further examples are found in chapter 1:2, 1:6, 1:9, 2:17 [2:18], 3:1, 3:2, 4:5, 5:6, 7:3, 7:15, 8:2, 8:4, etc. It should be noted that this Hebrew version of Revelation does also use the Hebrew word Elohim,¹ so one cannot argue that every occurrence of the title Elohim was removed from the Hebrew Revelation and replaced with this "ה'" (for YHWH).

So, how did this difference originate? It is very unlikely that any Hebrew translator would have rendered Theos as YHWH.² On the contrary, the Greek Septuagint translation shows

¹ See e.g. chapter 3:12 (x3), 7:12, 7:17, 11:4, 11:13, 12:15 [12:10], 19:17, 21:3, 21:4, 21:7 etc.

² Except in the phrase "Κύριος ὁ Θεός" – which in Hebrew could be either "אֲדֹנֵי יְהוָה" or "יְהוָה אֱלֹהִים".

numerous¹ examples where the Greek translators did render YHWH as Theos:

Genesis 4:4:

Hebrew Masoretic Text: "וַיִּשֶׁעַ יְהוָה"

= "Then YHWH looked"

Greek Septuagint: "καὶ ἐπεῖδεν ὁ θεὸς"

= "Then Theos looked"

Exodus 4:1:

Hebrew Masoretic Text: "לֹא-נִרְאָה אֵלַי יְהוָה"

= "YHWH did not appear to you"

Greek Septuagint: "οὐκ ὤπταί σοι ὁ θεός"

= "Theos did not appear to you"

Because Greek translators often translated YHWH as Theos, but Hebrew translators do not translate Theos as YHWH,² we can conclude that this Hebrew version of Revelation cannot be a translation from the Greek version,¹ but the Greek version could have originated from the Hebrew.

¹ Apart from the examples given here, this phenomenon also occurs in: Gen. 4:9, 6:6, 6:7, 12:17, 13:14, 15:7, 16:5, 18:1, 25:21, 30:24, 30:27, 31:49, 38:7, Ex. 4:11, 4:30, 4:31, 5:21, 9:5, 13:21, 19:3, 19:7, 19:8, 19:21, 35:30, 36:2, and many other places throughout the Old Testament.

² Except in the phrase "Κύριος ὁ Θεός" – which in Hebrew could be either "אֲדֹנֵי יְהוָה" or "יְהוָה אֱלֹהִים".

About the Transcript

The Hebrew transcript is based on Cambridge University Library manuscript Oo.1.16, folios 102r – 106v.² We have carefully transcribed it using color photographs of the actual manuscript. The current transcript has been thoroughly checked and revised.

The folio number of the corresponding page in the manuscript is stated where applicable throughout the transcript, e.g. \(102r\).

The following standardizations and corrections were made in the Hebrew transcript:

- All chapter headings were standardized.
- The abbreviation "ה" was replaced with the full name "יהוה".³

¹ Neither could it be a translation from the Aramaic Peshitta or Latin Vulgate, as these versions agree with the Greek use of Theos.

³ See pp. 47-51 for more information.

- The Rabbinic spelling "ישו"¹ was replaced with the proper spelling "ישוע".²
- The spellings "יאהנניס" and "אפרטס" were replaced with their proper spellings "יוחנן" and "פרת".
- All other names were transcribed as written in the Hebrew manuscript, except for the omission of occasional vowel points (see below).
- Vowel points are occasionally found on some words in the manuscript, but these were not copied into the transcript.

¹ The spelling "ישו" (Yeshu) was commonly used by many Jews in the middle ages instead of the fully spelled out "ישוע" (Yeshua) – similar to "הי" or "השם" instead of "יהודה". The spelling "ישו" has a negative connotation and was generally used by non-messianic Jews. However, one cannot conclude that all Jews who used this spelling were non-Messianic Jews. E.g. next to Hebrews 7:3 (CUL Oo.1.32), a reader commented "מלכי צדק בלא אב ואם לא נברא ולא מת עדין הוא ישו" (Malki Tsedek – without father or mother, he was not created and does not die – he is still Yeshu!) Also, there is no indication that any anti-messianic alterations were made in this Hebrew Revelation. The fact that Yeshua is the Messiah was not at all undermined by the scribe. (See Rev. 1:1, 1:2, 1:5, 1:9, etc.)

² Note that the spelling "ישוע" has been used since the time of Ezra – long before the birth of Yeshua the Messiah! (See e.g. Ezra 2:2, 2:6, 2:36 etc. and especially Nehemiah 8:17 where Joshua the son of Nun is even called "ישוע" (Yeshua), using the shorter spelling.) Thus the pronunciation 'Yeshua' was not invented by anti-messianic Jews as many have claimed.

- Certain word(s) or letters were placed in [square brackets] to show that they have been corrected based on the context.
- Empty square brackets [] were used where a word or phrase in the manuscript has been crossed out or marked as a mistake by the scribe / proof-reader.

The grammar, syntax, and vocabulary of this Hebrew Revelation are not exactly the same as either Classical, Mishnaic, or Medieval Hebrew. Although similar to Mishnaic Hebrew, it also overlaps with Classical Hebrew.

In order for Hebrew readers to become familiarized with the grammar and syntax used in this Hebrew Revelation, we recommend reading the transcript alongside the English translation.

The correct meaning of most of the Hebrew vocabulary used in the Hebrew Revelation of Oo.1.16 can be found amongst the following lexicons:

- Earnest Klein, A Comprehensive Etymological Dictionary of the Hebrew Language for Readers of English.¹
- Marcus Jastro, A Dictionary of the Targumim, the Talmud Babli and Yerushalmi, and the Midrashic

Literature, volume 1 + 2 (A Hebrew + Aramaic to English dictionary).¹

- David J. A. Clines, The Concise Dictionary of Classical Hebrew.²
- William L. Holladay, A Concise Hebrew and Aramaic Lexicon of the Old Testament.³

Ben Yehuda's dictionary series⁴ would also be useful for those who are very experienced in Hebrew – as explanations are given in Hebrew while only very basic meanings are given in English.

About the Translation

The manuscript used for this translation of Revelation is from the Cambridge University Library, ms. Oo.1.16, folios 102r – 106v. We have accurately and literally translated it, using digital color photographs of the actual manuscript. Photos of the applicable folios have been reproduced on pages 117 –

² Sheffield: Sheffield Phoenix press, 2009.

³ Grand Rapids: Wm. B. Eerdmans Publishing Co., 1971 (15th impression, 2000).

126. The translation is focused on accuracy rather than flowing English, as it is very easy to create contradictions with a paraphrase-type translation. In the current translation:

- Certain word(s) or phrases were placed in [square brackets] to show that (i) they have been corrected based on the context, or (ii) the applicable word(s) are still in question (e.g. smudged words, rare Hebrew words, etc.).
- The spellings of all names and titles were standardized.
- Only Names and Titles were capitalized. Pronouns like 'you' or 'he' etc. are not capitalized (even when referring to YHWH or Yeshua) as this is sometimes based merely on the translator's interpretation. The reader should rather use the context to determine whom the pronoun is referring to.
- Italic words were added to help the English reader understand what the Hebrew text implies by context.
- Certain words were marked in bold + underlined according to emphasis in the Hebrew manuscript – based on special word order etc. – and are not our own emphasis or interpretation.
- Chapter and verse numbering in the manuscript is generally the same as in standard English translations. When chapter and / or verse numbers differ, the standard English equivalent is added in [square brackets].

אלה הסודות פרק א'

¹ \(102r\) אלה הסודות נתן יהוה² לישוע המשיח להראות לעבדיו מה שיהיה בקרוב והוא שלח אותם ע"י^{3,4}

¹ The number stated in brackets is the corresponding folio number of Oo.1.16 on which the Hebrew transcript is based.

² The Hebrew manuscript uses an abbreviation "ה" for "השם". It was common practice for many scribes to write 'Ha-Shem' or some abbreviation rather than writing the full name "יהוה". The fact that this abbreviation for 'Ha-Shem' really represents the name "יהוה" is evident when the Hebrew Revelation quotes from the Old Testament, e.g.

Isaiah 6:3:

Hebrew Masoretic Text: "קְדוֹשׁ | קְדוֹשׁ יְהוָה צְבָאוֹת"

Oo.1.16 (Revelation 4:8) "קדוש קדוש קדוש ה' צבאות"

Psalms 113:1:

Hebrew Masoretic Text: "הַלְלוּ יְהוָה הַלְלוּ אֶת־שֵׁם יְהוָה"

Oo.1.16 (Revelation 19:5) "הללויה הללו עבדי ה' הללו את שם ה'"

Isaiah: 60:19:

Hebrew Masoretic Text: "וְהָיָה לְךָ יְהוָה לְאוֹר עוֹלָם"

Oo.1.16 (Revelation 22:5) "והיה לך ה' לאור עולם"

From the above examples it is very clear that this abbreviation "ה" used in the Hebrew Revelation actually represents the Name "יהוה".

³ Abbreviation for "על יד".

⁴ Take note that Hebrew and English word orders are different, thus some page transitions do not correspond exactly in the Hebrew transcript, compared to the English translation.

Ele Ha-Sodot¹

1: 1 (102r) These are the confidential counsels² which YHWH³ gave to Yeshua⁴ Ha-Mashiach,⁵ to show his servants what will happen soon.⁶ And he sent them by the hand⁷ of his ¹ Or simply ‘Sodot’ – the Hebrew title for the Book of ‘Revelation.’ See also next footnote.

² Hebrew: “סודות” (sodot), plural of סוד (sod). Could also mean “secrets” or “mysteries.” This Hebrew word is used both positively and negatively – compare e.g. Ps. 25:14, Pr. 3:32, Am. 3:7 vs. Ps. 64:2(3), 83:3(4).

³ The manuscript uses Hebrew abbreviation “יה” for ‘Ha-Shem,’ which literally means “The Name.” Today still, many Jews will read “Ha-Shem” when they see the Hebrew יהוה. We have replaced ‘Ha-Shem’ with transliterated consonants of ‘the Name’ itself: “YHWH.” As for pronunciation, the only grammatically possible pronunciation, from which all other abbreviations / contractions can be formed, is “Yah-weh” – with emphasis on the second syllable. For more information see www.HebrewGospels.com/yhwh.

⁴ Hebrew name for ‘Jesus.’

⁵ Or “The Messiah.” The Hebrew word ‘Mashiach’ was translated into the Greek ‘Kristos’ but should be clearly distinguished from the Catholic symbolic ‘Christ.’ Literal meaning: “anointed one,” usually referring to someone anointed as king of Israel, or as priest or prophet. However when used as a name, it refers to the Son of YHWH, whom he anointed as the ultimate King of Israel, the Everlasting High Priest, and the Prophet who would speak YHWH’s words to his people – and if anyone disobeys him, YHWH himself will cut off that person from among his people. See Deu. 18:18-19.

⁶ Lit. “at near” – the Biblical meaning of ‘soon’ or ‘near’ is not always what we expect. See e.g. Is. 13:22, stating that Babylon’s destruction is near, yet Babylon was only destroyed generations later, and the ultimate fulfillment is still future! (Rev. 17-19).

⁷ A Hebrew idiom meaning “by” or “through” or “by means of.”

¹ Note that this word has the definite article and is still in construct state based on context. This phenomenon is very common in the Hebrew Revelation and also occurs in the Tanach – see e.g. Ex. 39:27, Judg. 16:14, 1 Kin. 14:24, 2 Kin. 16:14, Jer. 25:26, 1 Chr. 9:26, etc.

¹ Hebrew: ‘mal’ach.’ Used for both human and heavenly messengers. The English word ‘angel’ is not a translation – only a transliteration of the Greek ‘aggelos.’ Besides, the average person reading ‘angel’ would probably envisage some female figure with wings. Heavenly ‘mal’achim’ or messengers are distinct from the cherubim; they do not have wings and appear as men. (‘Angels’ and ‘men’ are used interchangeably – see e.g. Gen. 18. Compare Mat. 28:2-5 and John 20:12 vs. Mark 16:5 and Luke 24:4, also see Heb. 13:2.) Ironically, the ‘angels’ depicted in many Christian books look more like the evil spirits described in Zec. 5:9.

² Hebrew name for ‘John.’

³ Yochanan repeatedly reminds us that he was an eyewitness of the things described in Revelation. See e.g. chapters 1:12, 1:19, 4:1, 4:2, 5:1, 6:1, etc.

⁴ Lit. “this one,” but means ‘he’ or ‘him.’

⁵ Plural of רוח (ruach) – the Hebrew word for “spirit,” “breath” or “wind.”

⁶ Or possibly ‘from.’

¹ The “י” preformative is used several times instead of “ו” with third person masculine imperfect verbs and the “ו” does not affect the person of the verb, it only seems to place extra emphasis on the subject. Compare chapter 2:20 [2:22], 3:4, 3:5, 3:9, 7:15, 11:9, 18:5, 18:9, 22:11.

² Alternative spelling for “לזקינים”. In the Hebrew Revelation the ‘ה’ of the definite article is often retained with the inseparable preposition ‘ל’. This phenomenon also occurs in the Hebrew Tanach, mostly in the post-exilic books – see e.g. 1 Sam. 13:21, Ezek. 47:22, Neh. 12:38, 2 Chr. 10:7, 2 Chr. 25:10, 2 Chr. 29:27.

³ A Hebrew idiom which often means "forever and ever" – see e.g. Jer. 7:7, 25:5, 1Chr. 16:36, Neh. 9:5, Ps. 41:13, 103:17, 106:48.

⁴ Lit. "The valley of Hinnom." This Hebrew word is transliterated into Greek as 'Gehenna,' and is inaccurately translated as 'Hell.' This is a literal valley right next to Jerusalem ordained for future punishment. See Matthew 25:41-46 in the www.HebrewGospels.com version: "And then he will say to those who are on the left side... go into the fire of Gei-Hinnom, which is prepared for Ha-Satan and his messengers... And these will go into the fire of Gei-Hinnom, but the righteous ones will go into everlasting light." To learn more about the Biblical definition of 'Gei-Hinnom,' see Jer. 7:30-33, Is. 30:33, 66:24, etc.

⁵ Hebrew: "סוד" (sod). Could also mean "secret" or "mystery." This Hebrew word is used both positively and negatively – compare e.g. Ps. 25:14, Pr. 3:32, Am. 3:7 vs. Ps. 64:2(3), 83:3(4).

The pronunciation indicated by this vowel letter (ותְקוּתֶיךָ) follows the pattern of pausal forms found in the Masoretic Text. E.g. “אִשְׁתֶּיךָ” has the same meaning as “אִשְׁתְּךָ”, but the latter form is in pause. Such pausal pronunciations are often used throughout the Hebrew Revelation.

¹ Alternative spelling for "איזבל" – compare e.g. "ישי" (1 Sam. 16:1, etc.) and "אישי" (1 Chr. 2:13).

² The "ת" preformative is used several times instead of "י" with third person masculine imperfect verbs and the "ת" does not affect the person of the verb, it only seems to place extra emphasis on the subject. Compare chapter 1:7, 3:4, 3:5, 3:9, 7:15, 11:9, 18:5, 18:9, 22:11.

that you always work even more.¹ 19 [20] But I have a small² thing against you – that you allow the woman Izevel,³ who says that she is a prophetess; and those who teach⁴ and seduce my servants to commit fornication. 20 [22] Look, I am about to bring over her – and over him⁵ who lies with her – great suffering, unless they do repentance concerning their works. 21 (And I did give her time to do repentance.) 22 [23] And her sons will be put to death, and all the assembly will recognize that I am he who tests kidneys and heart. And every one – according to his measures it will be rewarded⁶ to him. 23 [24] But to you, even to the others who are in Thyatira, I am saying that I will not bring more suffering⁷ upon you, since you did not learn of the teaching of Ha-Satan; 24 [25] but you must hold on to this⁸ which you have until I come. 25 [26] And whosoever overcomes, I will give nations as his inheritance, 26 [27] and he will lead them with a rod of iron, and you will shatter them like a potter's vessel.⁹ 27 And like I received from my Father, [28] so I will give him the light.¹⁰ 28 [29] Whosoever has ears must hear what the Ruach says to the assembly.”

¹ Or “that you work more all the time.”

² Sarcastic.

³ Hebrew name for ‘Jezebel.’

⁴ Or “...that they teach and seduce my servants to...”

⁵ Lit. “this one,” but means ‘he’ or ‘him.’

⁶ Or “repaid.”

⁷ Or “distress” or “trouble.”

⁸ Or “that.”

⁹ Similar to Ps. 2:8-9.

¹⁰ Lit. “dawn” or “daybreak” – used as a synonym of “light,” and in this context probably means “glory.” Compare Joh. 17:22 in the www.HebrewGospels.com version.

of the earth and to all the world, to gather them to war for the day of YHWH the Mighty.¹ 14 [15] ("Look! I will come like a thief, and blessed are those who do not sleep, but keeps himself that he does not walk naked without clothes, that his nakedness be not uncovered.") 15 [16] And he gathered them to a place which is called in the Hebrew tongue, Har-Megidon.²

16 [17] Then the seventh poured out his bowl in the air, and there came a voice from the throne, and said, "This is over!" 17 [18] And there were voices and thunders and lightnings, and an earthquake which had never happened before – 18 [19] and of the great city was made three parts, and the cities of the nations fell. And the great city Bavel³ was remembered before YHWH, to give her the cup with the wine of his burning anger. 19 [20] And all the mountains and hills fled, and were seen no more. 20 [21] And great hail fell on man from the heavens, and they blasphemed YHWH because of the plague of the hail.

17: 1 Then one of the seven messengers who had the seven bowls came and spoke with me and said, "Come, and you will be shown⁴ the judgment of the great harlot who sits over⁵ much waters, 2 with whom⁶ the kings of the earth and those whom she had made drunk with her wine have committed adultery."

3 So he brought me into the wilderness, and I saw the woman who sat on the animal whose appearance was like the appearance of lilies, and was full of names of blasphemy, and he had seven heads and ten horns. 4 And the woman was clothed with red garments with the appearance of lilies, and upon her there was much gold and goodly¹ stones and pearls,² and there was a golden cup³ in her hand, full of uncleanness.⁴ 5 And on her forehead was written the name of the secret⁵ of the great city Bavel, the mother of the harlots and uncleanness⁶ of the earth. 6 And I saw that the woman drank⁷ of the blood of the set-apart ones, and of the blood of the testimony of Yeshua. And I had a great amazement⁸ when I saw her.

7 Then the messenger said to me, "Because of what do you have amazement? I want to tell you the secret of the woman and of the animal which she sits upon, and because of what⁹ he has seven heads and ten horns. 8 The animal which you saw, was, but is not, and will come again from the Deep, (but he will go to She'ol).¹⁰ Then the men of the earth will be amazed about him, when they see the animal who was, and is not, although he is.¹

9 And here is a word which needs insight and wisdom and understanding: the seven heads are seven mountains which the woman sits upon,² [10] and these are seven [kings]. 10 And of them, five are fallen and another is, but the second³ is not yet, and when he comes, he must be for a little time. 11 And the animal which was and is not, this is the eighth, and he is of the seven, and goes to She'ol. 12 And the ten horns which you saw are ten [kings] who have not yet received the kingdom, but they will rule like kings with the animal for⁴ a little time. 13 And they have one plan, and they will give their power and their strength to the animal. 14 And they will make war with the Lamb, but the Lamb will overcome them, for he is the Adon of the adonim,⁵ and the King of the kings, and with him are the chosen ones and the faithful ones."

¹ In the Hebrew Bible an animal not only represents a specific kingdom, but also its leader / king (See Daniel chapters 7 & 8). Thus the animal "who was and is not although he is," is easily understood: The leader of this kingdom had already died by the time John wrote the book of Revelation. So he was (had existed / lived), and then he died (is not), but yet his spirit is in "the Deep" and he will "come again from the Deep" and live again, temporarily resurrected from the dead. This will amaze just about everyone in the world!

² Hebrew idiom meaning 'rules over' or 'reigns over' – could also mean "dwells on."

³ I.e. 'the second' of the last two of the seven kings.

⁴ Lit. "over."

⁵ Or "the Lord of lords."

Yeshua, and those who did not take the sign of the animal on their foreheads, and did not pray to him or to his image. And these lived, and ruled with Yeshua for a thousand years, ⁵ (but the other dead ones did not rise until the thousand years were finished), and this is the first resurrection.

⁶ Blessed is he who has a part in the first resurrection, for over them there is no power of the last¹ death, but they will be priests to YHWH and his Mashiach, and they will rule with him, a thousand years.

⁷ But after a thousand years, Ha-Satan will be delivered from his captivity.² ⁸ Then he will go³ to deceive the nations on the four ends⁴ of the earth, and Gog and Magog,⁵ to gather his army⁶ to come to war. (And their number is like the sand of the sea.)

⁹ And they trampled⁷ over the breadth of the earth, and surrounded the armies of the set-apart ones, and the beloved city. Then fire fell from the heavens and burned them up. ¹⁰ And Ha-Satan who seduced them was cast into the fire of Ha-She'ol, where the animal and the false prophet are, and they

11 Then I saw a great throne which was white, and him who sat on it. And from before him the heavens and earth fled away, but no place was found for them. 12 And I saw the dead ones – that the great ones and the small ones of them stood before YHWH. And the scrolls were opened, also another scroll was opened, and this is the scroll of life, to judge the dead ones according to what is written in the scrolls, even according to their works.

13 And the sea emptied out the dead ones who were in it, and death³ and Ha-She'ol gave the dead ones *who were in it*⁴ – and they were judged, every one according to his deeds. 14 Then the death and Ha-Gei-Hinnom were cast into fire, and this is the last⁵ death. 15 And if one was not found written in the scroll of the life, he was cast into the fire.

21: 1 Then I saw new heavens and a new earth, for the first heavens and earth had perished, also the *first*⁶ sea was no

⁶ Probably gapped (implied by context). John is not necessarily saying that the new earth has no sea, but rather that the first heaven and earth passed away, even the [first] sea was no more.

⁵ And he⁶ who sat on the throne said, "Look! I made everything new!" Then he said to me, "Write, for these words are truth!" ⁶ Then he said to me, "It is all over, I am the first and the last, the beginning and the end, and I will give the thirsty living waters, for free! ⁷ Whosoever overcomes will be possessor of all, and I will be Elohim to him, and he will be a son to me. ⁸ However, to those who do not believe, and to murderers and to fornicators and to sorcerers and to liars, I will give their reward from the fire of Ha-She'ol which burns with fire and sulfur, and this is the second death."

¹ Or possibly 'and.'

² This verse is mostly quoted from Eze. 47:12. Hebrew often uses singular for plural (collective), so there is no indication that there will be only one tree of life. (See also Eze. 47:7).

³ This does not indicate that one tree bears twelve kinds of fruit, but that the "tree of life" collectively refers to "every tree of food." Among the many different kinds of trees, fresh fruit will be produced every month. Trees bear fruit after their kind! One tree does not bear more than one kind of fruit (Gen. 1:11-12).

⁴ For easier understanding in English, the Hebrew collective use can be translated as plural (Most English translations do that with Eze. 47:12). "And among the plains, even besides the stream, there grew up all kinds of fruit trees – on both sides of its banks – namely, the trees of life. And on them were twelve kinds of fruit, and their fruit was for food, and their foliage for healing."

⁵ Lit. "her" – referring to the city. YHWH's throne in the city will cause it to be the 'Temple' (YHWH's tabernacle with men). See chapter 21:3, which indicates that the New Jerusalem and the Tabernacle of YHWH are synonyms. See also Eze. 43:7 – the river of life flows from underneath the Temple.

⁶ Lit. "her" – referring to the city, which is feminine in Hebrew.

⁷ Could also be translated: "And in it the sun will no more be for light by day, and for brightness; neither will the moon shine for you..."

Do not do this! – For I am also of your company and *your*⁴ brothers the prophets, and of those who establish the words of this scroll. Do your prayer to YHWH."

10 Then he said to me, "Do not seal up the vision of this scroll, for the time is near."⁵ 11 Whosoever is evil, he will be so all the time; whosoever is unclean will also be so; but whosoever is faithful will be so all the time; and whosoever is set-apart, also just like this."

¹ Lit. "as your glory" or "for your glory."

² Verse 5 is mostly quoted from Is. 60:19.

³ Lit. "at near" – the Biblical meaning of 'soon' or 'near' is not always what we expect. See e.g. Is. 13:22, stating that Babylon's destruction is near, yet Babylon was only destroyed generations later, and the ultimate fulfillment is still future! (Rev. 17-19).

⁴ Understood from preceding part of the verse. (Called gapping, commonly found in the Hebrew Tanach).

¹ The preposition "מן" can mean "in," "into," "toward," etc. See e.g. Lev. 4:17, Lev. 14:16, Pro. 5:18, Lam. 1:20, Gen. 13:11.

² Truncated form of "ובאם", compare verse 19.

12 "And look! I will come with haste, to reward¹ every man according to his work! 13 I am the first and the last, the beginning and the end! 14 Blessed are they who do his commandments, that they may have part² in the tree of life, and be pure to walk in the city. 15 For the dogs and the sorcerers and the harlots and the murderers and the liars stay outside. 16 I Yeshua sent my messengers³ to show this to the assembly. Even I am the root of the families of Dawid!

17 Both the Ruach and the bride – say 'Come'!⁴ And whosoever hears, let him say, 'Come!' And whosoever thirsts, 'Come to the living waters! And drink without money⁵ and without price!'⁶

18 But I testify to all who hear the prophecy of this scroll, that [if] one will add any⁷ words to it, YHWH will add to him the plagues which are written in this scroll, 19 and if anyone will diminish any⁸ words from this scroll, YHWH will blot out his name from the scroll of life." 20 And thus says he who testifies this, "Yes, I will come with haste!" Glossary

Adon Standard Hebrew word for ‘Lord’ or ‘Master.’

Amein Hebrew pronunciation of ‘Amen.’ When the Hebrew word ‘amein’ is used as an adverb, it means “surely” or “truly.” When used as a title, it means “Sure,” “Faithful” or “Truth.”

Dawid Hebrew name for ‘David.’

Bavel Hebrew name for ‘Babylon.’

Elohim Usually translated as ‘God.’ In Hebrew however, the word ‘luck’ or ‘fortune’ is pronounced as ‘gad’ and sometimes as ‘god’ (medieval) – see e.g. Gen. 30:10-11, Josh. 11:17, Is. 65:11. Therefore we prefer to not use ‘God.’

Ha-Gei-Hinnom Lit. “The valley of (the son of) Hinnom.” This Hebrew word is transliterated into Greek as ‘Gehenna,’ and is inaccurately translated as ‘Hell.’ This is a literal valley right next to Jerusalem ordained for future punishment. See Matthew chapter 25:41-46 in the www.HebrewGospels.com version: “And then he will say to those who are on the left side... go into the fire of Gei-Hinnom, which is prepared for Ha-Satan and his messengers... And these will go into the fire of Gei-Hinnom, but the righteous ones will go into everlasting light.” To learn more about the Biblical definition of ‘Gei-Hinnom,’ see Jer. 7:30-33, Is. 30:33, 66:24, etc.

Ha-Mashiach The Messiah. The Hebrew word ‘Mashiach’ was translated into the Greek ‘Kristos’ but should be clearly distinguished from the Catholic symbolic ‘Christ.’ Literal meaning: “anointed one,” usually referring to one anointed as king of Israel, or as priest or prophet. However, when used as a name, it refers to the Son of YHWH, whom he anointed as the ultimate King of Israel, the Everlasting High Priest, and the Prophet who would speak YHWH's words to his people, and if anyone does not obey him, YHWH himself will cut off that person from among his people. See Deu. 18:18-19.

Ha-Satan Lit. "The Adversary." Normally used as a name or title.

Menorah (Pl. 'menorot.') The Hebrew word for 'lampstand.'

Mitsrayim Hebrew name for 'Egypt.'

Mosheh Hebrew name for 'Moses.'

Nephesh (Pl. 'nephashot.') Lit. "breath," means 'life,' or 'soul,' etc. – take note, not the Greek understanding of 'soul.'

Ruach (Pl. 'ruchot.') Hebrew word for 'spirit' or 'wind,' sometimes used with a double meaning.

Ruach Ha-Qodesh Lit. "the Set-Apart Spirit."

Satan The Hebrew word 'satan' literally means "adversary." If 'satan' has the article it is normally used as a title (and is transliterated as 'Ha-Satan'); however satan (without the article) is used for 'enemy' or as a synonym of 'demon.'

Sedom Hebrew name for 'Sodom.'

Shabbat Hebrew name for 'Sabbath.'

She'ol The place of the dead. To learn more about the Biblical definition of She'ol, see: Gen. 37:35, Num. 16:30-33, 1Sam. 2:6, Is. 14:9-15, Eze. 31:15-25, Jonah 2:2[3], etc.

Shopfar (Pl. 'shopharot.') The Hebrew word for "ram's horn" or "trumpet."

Shalom Lit. “wholeness,” “completeness” or “well-being,” can also mean ‘peace.’ ‘Shalom’ is also used as a greeting.

Tanach ‘Tanach’ is a Hebrew acronym for ‘Torah, Nevi’im, Ketuvim,’ or in English, ‘The Law, the Prophets, the Writings.’ In other words, it refers to the entire so-called ‘Old Testament.’

Torah The Hebrew word ‘Torah’ means “instruction.” The Creator gave his perfect and everlasting Torah (instructions) to Moses. When Torah is used as a name, it refers to the first five books of the Bible (The Pentateuch), or by extension, the entire Old Testament.

Yehudah Hebrew name for ‘Judah’ or ‘Judea.’

Yehudim Hebrew name for ‘Jews.’

Yerushalayim Hebrew name for ‘Jerusalem.’

Yeshua Hebrew name for ‘Jesus.’ ‘Yeshua’ is short for ‘Yehoshua,’ which means ‘YHWH is Salvation,’ see Mat. 1:21.

YHWH The manuscript uses Hebrew abbreviation “יה” for ‘Ha-Shem,’ which literally means “The Name.” Today still, many Jews will read “Ha-Shem” when they see the Hebrew יהוה. We have replaced ‘Ha-Shem’ with transliterated consonants of ‘the Name’ itself: “YHWH.” As for pronunciation, the only grammatically possible pronunciation, from which all other abbreviations / contractions can be formed, is ‘Yah-weh’ with emphasis on the second syllable. For more information see www.HebrewGospels.com/yhwh.

Yisrael Hebrew name for ‘Israel.’

Yochanan Hebrew name for ‘John.’
